ANNOUNCEMENT.
Commonwealth's Attorney.
Sam Houston is a candidate for the office of Commonwealth's Attorney for the second judicial district composed of Adams, Lincoln and Marshall counties at the November election.

Why don't the "Register" put up the Democratic ticket? Is it ashamed of its composition, contemplating a bolt, or is the editor waiting to be "seen"? If the paper hasn't got room enough, one or two of the ads of the "Register" might be taken out.
The "Counter-Journal's" Frankfort correspondent intimates that there will be some startling indictments by the Franklin county grand jury growing out of the bribery cases at Frankfort. Let the indictments be fearlessly made. The people of Kentucky would like to know what was done at Frankfort by both sides.
The only reason we can assign for the action of the Democratic papers in espousing the cause of Mr. Ascraft for the position of postmaster is to show their appreciation of his vote in the contested election case from Daviess county before the present legislature, when his vote was cast to seat the Democratic contestant over the Republican, in which case the evidence was strongly in favor of Mr. Werner, the Republican.
THOSE QUESTIONS.
The Sun fears that the able editor of the "Register" has not noticed the questions propounded to him of late. These questions are important and the Democrats of this city desire them answered. We therefore hereby repeat them:
How did the chief stockholder and manager of the "Register" vote in the last election—for Bryan, Palmer or McKinley?
Did he let vote against Capt. Johnson, the Democratic candidate for mayor?
Did not the present Democratic candidate for mayor vote against Capt. Johnson on the same election?
Is the "Register" a free silver or a single gold standard paper?

THE REGISTER has the largest daily circulation of any paper in West Kentucky, Paducah included; and its largest city circulation of any paper in Paducah. Advertising is accepted with this guarantee.—[Register].
We would like to know what the "guarantee" of a paper is worth that has not the courage to publish its circulation. The alleged newspaper man who is accumulating experience in the "Register" office may think he is feeling the Paducah advertiser but he is not. The preponderance of space devoted to advertising the "Register" in its own columns is ample proof of that.
THE FARMER AND THE TARIFF
It takes nerve to edit a free silver paper in these days, but the editorial rooms of the Louisville "Dispatch" are amply stocked with that article. Under the caption "Farmers and Protection," the "Dispatch" shows that this country during the last six months has exported $584,460,706 worth of farmers' products, while within the same period only $18,561,132 worth of the same line of products have been imported, leaving the excess of exports over imports $565,899,567. It concludes its article by saying that "the farmer who, in the face of these official figures, talks about the benefit of protection to him is hopelessly ignorant or hopelessly insane, unless he thinks more of the Republican party, with its grinding monopolies than he thinks of his own family, his country and humanity."
We will venture the assertion that there is not a farmer who votes for protection with the idea that his products are protected directly. The theory of the Republican party, and every farmer well understands it, is that by protecting the American workman, a greater home market is created for the products of American farms.
The New York "Journal" (silver Democratic) recently stated that out of 100,000 able bodied laborers in the city of New York who last winter were supported by some sort of charity, not 10,000 are now out of work. That means that 90,000 workmen and their families, who last winter were living by charity or going hungry, are now at work and able to clothe and feed their families. Those 90,000 laborers are helping to swell the home market. We do not say that the passage of the Dingley tariff law has given work to those 90,000 people, but that case illustrates how a protective tariff protects the farmers. For every piece of goods that is kept out of this country by the tariff, another piece will be made in this country by American workmen, and the giving of that workman employment will cause a corresponding increase in the home demand for food,—or the products of the farm.
In arguing with the American farmer on the tariff or any other question the "Dispatch" must presume that the farmer has some common sense.

OFFICIAL MURDER.
The coal miners' strike of the summer of 1897 has been baptized with blood. Twenty or more funerals today from the hill top cabins in the Hazleton district of Pennsylvania attest the violence of the miners, the reckless cowardice of the sheriff and the majesty of the law. Were those poor Hungarian miners wantonly slain, or did they simply pay the penalty of a violation of the law, as interpreted by the courts in their orders granting the now famous injunctions. Possibly the facts attending the slaughter may never be sufficiently known to enable an entirely unprejudiced opinion to be formed.
The following press telegram tells the story of the horror and the circumstances preceding it as fully as any that we have seen:
Hazleton, Pa., Sept. 10.—Blood shed and riot were rampant today among the striking miners at Latimer, and as a result twelve men are dead and over forty are more or less seriously wounded. For some time past a strike of miners, machinists and mine laborers has been in operation in the Lehigh valley. Beginning with the employees of the Lehigh and Wilkes-Barre Coal Company it gradually extended until within the last few days it included almost every mine in the extensive Lehigh valley. The greater part of the strikers are foreigners, many of whom do not speak English, and hundreds of armed deputies have been employed by the companies. This morning a large number of the strikers, mostly Hungarians, met at a place called Harwood, where they held an impromptu meeting and were addressed by several of the leaders of the strike. After the meeting they started to induce the few miners that were at work to cease.
At Crystal Ridge and other places en route other strikers joined the line of march. The first trouble began when the army of strikers reached Hazleton, where the strippings of Cuyler Bros. are located. Here a stop was made and a few men were sent forward to induce those at work to throw down their tools. About a score of deputies were on hand and immediately a fierce hand to hand fight followed. The strikers used stones, bricks, pieces of old iron and other missiles, while the deputies, refraining from firing, used their rifles as clubs to keep their assailants at bay.

One of the strikers was injured in the melee, his arm being broken and his head and face being badly cut and bruised. He, together with another injured companion, was arrested and brought to the station house.
The strikers then marched on, intending to reach Latimer and Minersville before nightfall. The deputies were hurried with all possible haste in that direction by way of the traction cars, and reached Latimer considerably in advance of the strikers. At about 3:30 o'clock word was brought to the waiting deputies that the advance guard of the strikers was coming over the turnpike. Three companies of deputies were then drawn up across the roadway. Sheriff Martin was in command, and with Thomas Hall, S. B. Prince, son of ex-Judge Samuel B. Prince, of Carbon county, and E. A. Hess, assistants, stood in front of the line when the strikers appeared. When the strikers approached the sheriff read the riot act and commanded them to peacefully disperse. This the strikers refused to do. In a moment the order to fire was given, by whom it is not quite clear, and was promptly obeyed.
From this account the following conclusions can be legitimately drawn.
At the Hazle mines the strikers had been violating the law; they were in open contempt of court, when they attempted to entice the miners from their work. The deputies had a right to drive the strikers from the mines, and the strikers had no right to enter upon the property of the mining company for the purpose of getting their men to quit work. Thus far the marching strikers were at fault.
A careful reading of the injunction granted by the courts, and to enforce the provisions of which the 102 deputies were employed, does not demonstrate that the miners in marching upon the highway were violating any law, and the conclusion is irresistible that the deputies had no right to halt them upon the highway, and far less right to fire upon them.
Later accounts of the horror show that the miners were entirely unarmed and that many of them were shot in the back, and also no adequate reason at all has been given why the sheriff should have given the order to fire. A volley over the heads of the mob would have been effective, but it seems that the deputies shot to kill, and volley after volley was poured into the helpless mass.
We believe that the coal operators have a right to have their property protected; that miners willing to work have a right to do so unmolested. But we do not believe that armed deputies have a right to barricade the public highways, and to shoot down defenseless people like so many dogs. The killing of those Hungarians was nothing less than murder under the guise of the law. The rights of the people demand that the sheriff and all the deputies be made to answer for their crime at the hands of the courts, and that rigid justice be done.

A MYSTERIOUS HAUL.
Two Cairo Lads Find a Bible Cover in the River.
It Was Evidently Owned by a Paducahan.—How Did It Get There?
Cairo is mystified over the strange and interesting find of two lads last week who were seeking for minnows near the Point. The boys were diligently hauling about the water when they found in the meshes of their net the covering of an old family bible. The only marks on the damp and mouldy exterior were the words "Little Willie Walker, Paducah, Ky.," inscribed in a legible feminine hand. In a receptacle of one of the lids of the covering were enclosed five tin-type photographs, apparently of an entire family, embracing a mother, daughter, two young boys and a baby. There are two pictures of the mother, who is probably about forty years of age. She is a decided brunette, and the marks of care and overwork are plainly discernible on her face. The daughter's picture shows her to be a brunette, about twenty years old and fairly pretty. The style of dress and hair of the two women seem to indicate that the pictures were taken several years ago. The two lads are photographed together and appear to be about ten and twelve years of age. The baby, who looks more like its mother than either of the other three children, and is a plump six months old. In the same were also some shreds of clothing, but whether they have any connection with the photographs, yet remains to be seen. The two boys handed their find to Seaman Barth, bartender for Mr. Swoboda, father of the two boys, Albert and Adolph, who made the find.
How long the bible and its contents have laid beneath the murky waters of the Ohio cannot even be conjectured. How they came there is a mystery. Whether they are from some shanty boat destroyed by storm, and whose owners have perished from human sight, or whether some dark crime caused their consignment to the grave where they were found, no one can tell. Many a shanty boat with its occupants has disappeared beneath the waves, and it may be that these photographs and this bible cover are the only epitaph which has been left by these unfortunate.

MR. BOSWELL SELLS OUT.
Mr. Allen Purchases His Interest in Dyersburg and Mayfern.
$1,000 Said to be the Price.—Mr. Herman Well Goes to Cairo With His Machine.
Mr. Tom Boswell Saturday evening sold his interest in Dyersburg and Mayfern, the popular Paducah pacer and trotter respectively, to his partner, Mr. W. E. Allen, who will continue them in the circuit.
The consideration was $1000, it is understood, and is not what most local horsemen thought a half interest in the two horses and all the equipment would bring. Mr. Boswell probably sold out because the horses were not doing much good this season. According to those who know, none of the Paducah horses have made money for their owners this year, although all of them have won some nest purses.
Dyersburg and Mayfern were taken to Evansville today, where the former goes against Castleton, who beat him in the free-for-all pace here last week. Trainer Wm. Highfield is in charge of the string.
Mr. Herman Well left this morning for Cairo, in response to a telegram from Seely E. A. Burke, of the fair and racing association, instructing him to come with his starting machine.
The machine did good work at the races here last week, and is in splendid condition, consequently Mr. Well expects to show the natives some smooth starting.
